An advertisement in The Lincoln Star recently promoted "The Spinning Wheel." Another ad read: "A Picture In My Mind b-w The Funky Alien." What does all this mean?

—Pam Paulsen, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Spinning Wheel is a newly organized Lincoln musical group. The three-man combo appears around town and includes Rick Cowling, Arnold Reeves and Jim Akin.

The title of their new record is "A Picture In My Mind" and the "b-w" means "backed with" or the tune on the other side of the record is "The Funky Alien." The record can be purchased in Lincoln at various record stores and counters.

How does one go about having a house condemned so that it will be torn down? I'm concerned about a rundown duplex with windows broken. The landlord has told the neighbors it does not pay to fix it so long as he gets his money.

—D. N., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Housing Administrator Carl Kopines reports that the city has a program for inspection of housing to determine whether or not a house should be condemned. A complaint must first be filed with the housing administrator's office.

Then the housing office will ask the occupant's permission to enter the premises for an inspection. If this is refused, a warrant allowing entry may be obtained but only if there is good reason to believe danger to the inhabitants exists.

Kopines' office says it will be glad to check into the matter, and that if the place is unfit for habitation the office will work to either get the property owner to make repairs or get the occupants relocated. Once the building is unoccupied, the matter would be referred to the city building inspection division which would determine whether the house should or should not be condemned.

I recently read an advertisement about high paying jobs in Alaska, but when I wrote for information, my letter came back marked "Out of Business." I still would like to know more about the jobs. How?

—C.D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Write: Alaska Employment Agency, Anchorage, Alaska or Teamster's Union, Local 959, P.O. Box 3-4127, Anchorage, Alaska.

The jobs include working for the oil industry on the North Slopes for labor scale wages on a seven-day week, 12-hour day. Line up the position before trekking all the way to the cold north land.

What is the city using to spray the trees since DDT is not supposed to be used?

—V.I.H., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to City Forester Emilio Fontana, the City Department is using a substance called methoxaclor.

Is it legal for people to pour oil over an unpaved street to keep down the dust? We live near 40th and Huntington and some people near here have used water and made the street muddy and then used oil so thick there are puddles. How can I get this stopped?

—Mrs. H.S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The practice is prohibited by the City Street Dept. because dust still exists — oily dust, explains Public Works Director Robert Obering. This oily dust is damaging to grass and it is difficult to paint houses with oily dust on them.

For an investigation of the situation you describe, contact City Street Dept. Superintendent Lloyd Bomberger at 475-5611.

Best bet would be to get a paving district going and eliminate the entire problem.

Why do people who work on the election board not get paid at least the minimum wage of $1.60 per hour instead of the $1.25 they have been receiving the past few years? When I asked, I was told the Legislature sets the wage.

—Mrs. K.J., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Legislature amended the pay scale this past session and election board workers will receive $1.60 this year.

Personnel on the nine-member Lancaster County election board are selected from among applicants and recommended names by the Election Commissioner at least 30 days prior to the general election and each member is certified for two years.

If you feel you are being underpaid, contact your state senator requesting a higher pay scale be adopted in the 1971 Legislative session.

I would like to give some money toward the new Lincoln Community Playhouse. Whom do I contact?

—Play Fan, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: You did not say what kind of contribution you wish to give — a pledge, special gift or dedicated gift — so please phone 432-5509 and request a name to contact.

The Playhouse gratefully acknowledges any and all the help it can get in the drive to raise $350,000 toward construction of a new building.

Folsom Leaves City Property, $5,000

The City of Lincoln has been given $5,000 in cash and all real estate owned by Arnott Folsom which was part of Epworth Park, according to provisions of Mr. Folsom's will filed in Lancaster County Court Wednesday.

According to the will, if the city determines it necessary to sell the land located near First and Calvert, proceeds from the sale is to be devoted exclusively to park purposes.

One of the more unusual items contained in the will of Mr. Folsom, who died last Saturday, is the gift to the Nebraska Historical Society of a "piece of flag from Abraham Lincoln's box, Ford Theatre, April 4, 1865."

Other beneficiaries receiving specified bequests, according to the will, include: Arizona-Sonora Museum at Tucson, San Diego Zoo, the Junior League of Lincoln and Madonna Home, each $1,000, and Brownville Historical Society, $2,000.

After specific bequests and a trust is set up for his widow, Janet Folsom, nine-tenths of the residue of the estate is to be set up in trust for his daughter-in-law, Elizabeth McGath Folsom and his two grandchildren, Susan and Thomas Folsom.

The remaining one-tenth of the residue is to be divided equally among the following:

The Children's Zoo, Cornhusker Council of Boy Scouts of America, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Beta Theta Pi Scholarship Foundation, Lincoln Symphony Association, Pinewood Bowl Foundation, Lincoln General Hospital, Lincoln City Library Foundation, the Lancaster Chapter of the American Red Cross, National Education Association and the University of Nebraska Foundation.

Rites Friday For A. W. Thompson

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Westminster Presbyterian Church for Arthur W. Thompson, Lincoln auctioneer who died Wednesday at the age of 83.

Sometimes referred to as "the dean of American auctioneers," the Bradshaw native was designated "Mr. Auctioneer of the World" by the National Auctioneers Association in 1963.

Mr. Thompson attend public schools in York, the York College School of Business, Lincoln Business College and the Jones Auction School in Chicago.

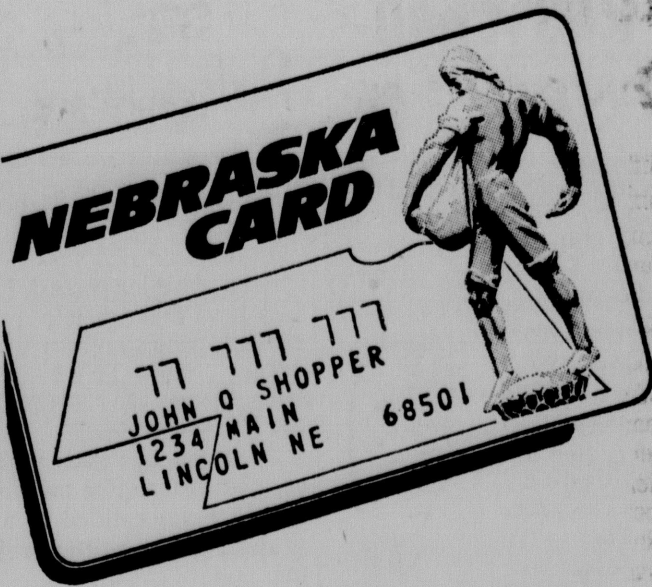

An elder of Westminster Church, he was a member of Blue Lodge Masons at York, 32nd degree Scottish Rite, Shrine, YMCA, Lincoln Country Club, University Club, Ak-Sar-Ben, Temple Chapter OES, the Chamber of Commerce and the Nebraska and National Auctioneers Association.

Mr. Thompson is survived by his wife, Viola; son Elwood (Jack) of Lincoln; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mrs. James Evinger Is Party Honoree

It always is the unusual that attracts attention. Take that Wednesday morning party as an example. One might just naturally suppose that because a bride-elect was there, the party doubtless was for her. Such was not the case. The coffee hostess was Mrs.

Robert L. Jeffrey, mother of Miss Linda Jeffrey who has a June 7 date for her marriage to James Scott Evinger. Mrs. Jeffrey entertained at her home in courtesy to Mrs. James Evinger of Boulder, Colo., formerly of Lincoln, the mother of the potential bridegroom.

In the picture, left to right, are Miss Sue Borgens, Miss Lynn Gottschalk, young Miss Debbie Bauer who is keeping as close as possible to her mother, Mrs. Martin Bauer; Mrs. James Cusick, Miss Jeffrey, Mrs. Evinger, Mrs. Kenneth B. Clark, Mrs. Larry Enersen, and a miniature glamour girl whose name is Phyllis Perry. The young lady's mother, Mrs. Edwin Perry, was among the party guests, but not in the picture.

Suburban Celebrations

Somehow the anniversary of the founding of the city of Rome (April 21, 753 B.C. for those who are not mathematically-inclined) slipped by us unnoticed — so, with all due apologies to the ancient city, we'd like to wish them a slightly-belated happy 2,723rd!

Perhaps of more interest to Lincoln residents are some anniversaries of the "birthday variety" which have brought a good deal of celebrating to suburbia during the very recent past. One of the observances took place Monday, and the honoree was Miss Mary Jane White, daughter of Bethany Park Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Phil White.

Mary Jane joined the ranks of three-year-olds on Monday, and taking part in a birthday dinner which was held that evening at her home were, of course, her parents, her brother, Phil; sisters, Susan, Patti and Cathleen; and her grandmother, Mrs. Avis J. White.

The celebrating is not quite over yet, however. This afternoon Mary Jane will be the guest of honor at a party which will be attended by a group of neighborhood friends. Included on the young lady's guest list are Mike Stumpf, Joel Huenink, Jeff Lubben, Mary Manglitz, Joel Manglitz, Monte Fritts, Mike Costello, Tim Costello, Ken Rowe and Kevin Rowe.

One does not have to be a member of the younger generation, however, to enjoy a birthday party — and when the festivities come as a surprise to the celebrant, the get-together is just that much more fun.

An authority on that particular subject — and we're sure she would agree with the above statement — is Mrs. Delbert Curtis of Park Manor. Mrs. Curtis observed her birthday on Thursday, April 16, and to celebrate the occasion, she and her husband planned to have dinner out on Saturday evening. But — when they arrived at their destination, three other couples awaited them, and a quiet dinner for two turned into a festive evening for eight. Participating in the fun were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hergenrader, and Mr. and Mrs. Les Weber.

Following dinner, the four couples went to the McGuire home for an evening of cards.

Enjoying a two-day holiday away from home last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Walter VanDeventer. On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. VanDeventer motored to Omaha where they were guests at the home of Mrs. VanDeventer's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ondracek and daughters.

There will be considerable activity this weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Daniels and family, and who will be dusting off the proverbial welcome mat to greet a number of out-of-state visitors who will arrive for a stay in Lincoln.

AROUND TOWN

We could turn this particular dawn into a count-your-blessings morning if we chose. We could, for instance, mention the weather and how lucky Lincoln is not to have eight inches of snow on the ground, or a tornado whipping through the city all of which tends to make it easier to take clouds, high winds, rain — and even a bit of hail, with good grace.

As a matter of fact we are taking everything with good grace this morning because we have news, and news always involves people, and people always are involved in activity.

You already know that Mrs. James Evinger of Boulder, Colo., is spending a few days in Lincoln, but what you probably don't know is that she will be joined here on Friday by Mr. Evinger.

And on Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Evinger and their daughter, Miss Sara Evinger — a coed at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma — will be host and hostesses at a cocktail party at the University Club.

The 6 o'clock-to-8 o'clock festivity will pay courtesy to their son and brother, James Scott Evinger and his fiancée, Miss Linda Jeffrey, whose marriage will be solemnized on Sunday, June 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Evinger will leave on Sunday to return to Boulder.

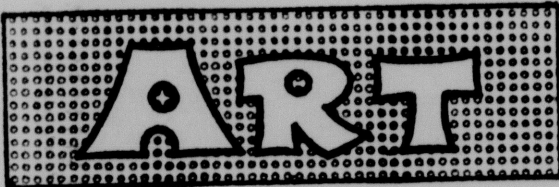

Now we skip to a week from Saturday evening, May 2, and a "Daisies Won't Tell" party.

We have no way of knowing what the daisies aren't telling, but we do know that the affair is a dinner dance at Hillcrest Club, and that it is the last party of the season for the members of the Ramblers Dancing Club.

Keeping the daisies under control is a committee which is composed of Mr. and Mrs. James McGraw, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. William Sanson, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Epp, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brown, Mr. and Mrs. George Albin, Mr. and Mrs. William Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. Reese Wilson.

We had some unhappy news from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lotto this morning. They tell us that after many years of residence in Lincoln they are leaving the city.

When mid-summer rolls around Mr. and Mrs. Lotto probably will be well settled in their new home at Laguna Hills, Calif., which already has collected numerous former Lincoln dwellers. And, of course, Laguna Hills is not too far away from La Jolla, also inhabited by many of Lincoln's former citizens, so Mr. and Mrs. Lotto will feel as though they never had left home.

BY JOHN CANADAY

(c) New York Times Service

Tokyo — A couple of New York dealers agreed in conversation recently that there was a good chance that the biggest art market in the 1970's might shift from our shores and prairies to Japan. Since both of these dealers anticipated the shift from Paris to New York while the going was good, their prophecy may be listened to respectfully. And apparently, they are not alone. In Tokyo you will spot, now and then, a figure familiar from Madison Avenue. It is a New York dealer's representative casing the joint.

According to the Japan Times, an English-language newspaper published here, a few months ago a team of Japanese "art experts," for which it is safe to read "entrepreneurs," brought over from France a collection of 500 paintings and sold out in eight days. The paintings were hardly Picassos, but the point is, they sold. The team is now in France again and plans to come back with 800, which they will pick up "in Paris and southern France" over a couple of months. That is a short time and a lot of paintings, and indicates the readiness of the Japanese to trust a foreign label on things cultural.

If the label isn't foreign, the style should be, and it should not be too modern. Just modern enough. There are very few Japanese collectors who are ready to buy works by young Japanese artists of the kind whose work we see in New York, and there are virtually none who are willing to trust his own judgment when they do risk the purchase of contemporary work. They much prefer a high-priced voguish American reputation to a promising Japanese, even when the local boy has made good in Manhattan.

The rich Japanese businessman, eager to display his new affluence, has learned that a painting on the wall is a prestige symbol (rivaled only by Johnny Walker Black Label and Napoleon Brandy in the liquor chest) and he wants to pay a high price for a product that looks both familiar and modern. What he will buy most readily is indicated not by the work in the Minami Gallery and the Tokyo Gallery which serve as two-way traffic channels for major contemporary New York reputations and the young Japanese who follow them, but by some pretty awful paintings in half a dozen plushy little picture shops specializing in tenderized versions of Soutine, Rouault, Vlaminck, Utrillo, Bonnard, early Matisse and, biggest of all, Raoul Dufy — all these by Japanese painters who have an awesome talent for imitating a style while disemboweling it. There is also a popular and productive Japanese Renoir school, heavy on his late period, although imitations of Monet have for some reason never caught on. There is a lot of cheap surrealism but no abstractions, not even cubism.

The situation, sordid as it is, is nevertheless full of promise. As an inspiration for something better, these rich and potentially richer men have a model in Shojiro Ishibashi, a tycoon whose surname translates as stone bridge, and who chose Bridgestone as the name for his tire company. In 1956 he formed the Ishibashi Foundation, whose principal function is the administration of the Bridgestone Gallery, a public museum housed in the firm's main building in Tokyo. The Bridgestone Gallery, presently under the direction of Yasuo Kamon (incidentally the man who lured Miro into accepting the commission for the Miro chamber in the Gas Pavilion at Expo '70) is a staggering collection of absolutely first-rate impressionist and post-impressionist and School of Paris paintings with a respectable group of antiquities and a gallery of turn-of-the-century Japanese academic paintings as well. As a kind of Japanese Norton Simon, Ishibashi-Stonebridge-Bridgestone and his Foundation hint at what the Japanese market might become.

Meanwhile, Tokyo's department stores are the barometer of the current state of things. On Sunday, the Japan Times lists the week's exhibitions, and last Sunday there were 44 in galleries and museums and 13 in department stores. This sounds bigger than it is, since at least nine out of ten of the galleries are simply in the space rental business. Serious Japanese artists have to exhibit there but so, also, can any amateur, as in New York's Vanity Galleries.

The department stores are something else. They are in business to sell and, like the best galleries in New York, they know that part of selling is to offer shows of some real interest and quality when interest and quality can be combined with salability.

The prices were high enough, however. There was a not very large and extremely slithery Kissing flower piece at an incredible 12-million yen, which boils down to about $34,000. At the equivalent of $6,300, there was a very small but really charming still life by Francois Bonvin that would have been a find in a Third Avenue antique shop at $500 and not a bad bargain in a minor Madison Avenue gallery at $3,000. At $2,400, there was a tiny but quite beautiful still life by Rene Chetien, whoever he was, that would have been a temptation to a folly at a thousand. At prices similar to these, there were numbers of paintings by obscure English and Dutch artists.

Ranging from $3,700 to $7,000, there were marbles of the kind you can't give away in New York. These are the kind carved by Italian, French, and German salon hacks at the turn of the century. The $7,000 job represented a curly-haired tot pulling a thorn from the paw of an appreciative puppy. It was in perfect condition.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

One of the most attractive features of duplicate bridge is that it provides the opportunity to compare the result obtained on a hand at one table with the result obtained by others who have played exactly the same hand at a different table.

The inevitable effect is that playing duplicate tends to sharpen one's game because of the urge in every deal to try to gain a better result than others who are making exactly the same effort. The sense of competition is much keener in duplicate than in rubber bridge.

This deal occurred in a team match. At the first table, West led the king of hearts, East signaling with the six to request a continuation of the suit. West duly obliged by playing the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy, led a club to the jack and another club back to the nine.

East took the ace and returned a diamond. Declarer rose with the ace, cashed the A-Q of spades, and led the king of clubs. East ruffed and South had to lose two diamonds to go down one.

The declarer at the second table, also, West found the best defense of the K-A of hearts, but South refused to ruff the ace and discarded a diamond from dummy instead.

The defenders were helpless against this play. Declarer later forced out the ace of clubs, drew three rounds of trumps ending in dummy, and discarded two diamonds on the established clubs. The heart trick that South sacrificed to maintain his trump position in dummy brought back two tricks in exchange.

ABBY: bad taste

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter attends a public school and is a fifth grader. She recently took the invitations to her birthday party to school to pass out to those classmates she wanted to attend. There are 33 children in her class, and she wanted only 27 of them at her party.

After she had passed out the invitations, the teacher took her in the hall and told her that as long as she didn't invite all the students, she used very poor taste in passing out her party invitations at school.

Since when does a school teacher have anything to say about where the invitations should be passed out for a party to be held in a child's own home on a Saturday?

ROCHESTER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think the school teacher showed more compassion than you or your daughter. The pain of having been left out will be remembered by those six uninvited children long after the fun of the party has been forgotten by those who attended.

DEAR ABBY: Can a person ever REALLY forgive and forget?

LEE

DEAR LEE: Not as long as that person keeps asking himself that question.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Answers To Your Beauty Problems

Q. Quite a few eyelashes were cut off by my eyelash curler, leaving a very noticeable bald spot. Can you please tell me if they will ever grow back?

A. If they were just broken off, I am sure they will grow back, but how in the world did you do it? The curlers usually have a rubber strip for protection from just such a happening. You surely must have been determined to give the lashes a heavenward sweep!

Q. I am very interested in having my breasts enlarged. Could you advise me of a good doctor and tell me how much it will cost? Could this operation cause cancer and would I have to go into the hospital?

A. I do not live in your part of the country and so cannot recommend any special plastic surgeon. I can tell you that there seems to be no evidence that this operation causes cancer and that you would have to go into a hospital for the operation. Ask your physician to recommend a surgeon or obtain this information from your local county medical society.

Q. Is there anything that can be done for drooping skin on the eyelids? There are folds of skin. My upper lids really hang over my lashes. It makes me very unhappy. Otherwise I look really young for my age. I am 50.

A. Yes. This condition can be corrected by plastic surgery. Discuss it with a well-qualified surgeon.

Q. I never felt that 30 was old but since reaching my 30th birthday I have had pronounced dark circles and puffy ridges under both eyes. People keep commenting on them and I have become very self-conscious. Nothing covers them up and some makeup only makes them look worse. I would like to find a way to get rid of them entirely. I take iron pills and vitamins, eat right and get 8 hours sleep each night. Help, please!

A. You are surely too young to have this problem. My guess is that you are probably allergic to something you come in contact with. However to rule out any organic or systemic trouble, you should have a physical checkup.

Cosmetics are often offenders. Try some of the hypoallergenic products planned especially for those who are sensitive to the usual cosmetics. There are several excellent brands. If any of my readers would like to have the names of some of these, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

Q. Can you tell me why I weigh more at night than in the morning?

A. Many factors can cause this difference. First, when you weigh in the morning, you have been without food for many hours. Your tummy is empty. When you weigh at night, you have eaten recently, and probably eaten the largest meal of the day. Clothing also makes a difference. You may weigh nude in the morning and with some clothes on at night.

U.S. Guns Go To Trinidad

Port of Spain, Trinidad (UPI) — British Commonwealth troops from Jamaica and Guyana landed in Trinidad and Tobago Wednesday to help the government put down a black power army mutiny, and the United States flew in a shipment of small arms.

The United States also sent six warships with 2,000 Marines aboard to stand by in case it becomes necessary to evacuate the approximately 1,000 U.S. resident nationals and an unknown number of American tourists from the Caribbean island.

In London, the British defense ministry said it had alerted two guided missile frigates in the Caribbean for possible emergency duty in Trinidad. They carry some 500 officers and men.

A government spokesman here said Commonwealth troops from Jamaica and Guyana already had landed on the Chaguaramas peninsula to aid loyal government forces in ousting an estimated 200 Army mutineers holding the military base there.

The U.S. State Department said in Washington the request for light weapons was received from Trinidad government officials and that the arms were being sold for cash.

A spokesman at the office of the prime minister said five persons have died since the mutiny broke out in army ranks Tuesday when about 200 military dissidents seized the arsenal at the Chaguaramas base to supply a local black power movement seeking a larger voice in the island government.

One rebel soldier and a government supporter were killed in fighting there Wednesday. Fireman Pete Praithwaite also died Wednesday from injuries received Tuesday night when someone threw a firebomb at him as he fought a fire near the city.

The mutiny came after the government of Prime Minister Eric Williams declared modified martial law to control growing black power disorders in the city and a threatened general strike. Trinidadian coast guardsmen arrested 14 strike leaders and then fought off an attempt by army dissidents to free them as they were being taken to an offshore prison.

Planners Endorse New Numbering System For Private Roads

The City-County Planning Commission Wednesday recommended approval of a new numbering system for buildings on private roadways.

The ordinance establishing the new system would pertain to private streets in mobile home courts and community unit plans. Planning commissioners agreed that the ordinance should not be retroactive to include homes using the present numbering system.

Under the proposed ordinance, the city would officially recognize the private street and allow residents to use the private street as their address. Presently, such residents must use the address of the public street at the point where the private street connects with the public street.

The use of private streets in residential developments is becoming increasingly popular among developers.

Courts Approved
The planning commission also recommended approval of two requests for mobile home courts which would be located on land zoned for single family use.

Commissioners, however, spent considerable time going over details of the plans for the two courts.

The planning and public works departments had objected to a number of items in each of the two proposals in the areas of curb cuts, storm and sanitary sewers, pavement standards, streets, off-street parking and sidewalks.

Commission Chairman Ed Perry said he was "exasperated" that the commission had to go over so many details on which city departments disagreed with the developers. Perry called for the department to come up with concrete guidelines for developers to follow.

Two Courts
Recommended for approval were a proposed mobile home court at S.W. 15th St. and West South St., which would be developed by Commodore Properties Inc., and another court at 1st St. and Belmont, which would be developed by Gas Light Village, Ltd.

Commissioners recommended that the density at the court at 1st and Belmont be reduced in accordance with the recommendation of the planning department.

The developers had proposed spaces for 501 units on the 75-acre site. The planning department said the number should be reduced by 67.

Other action:
—Recommended denial of a special permit for the construction and operation of a Montessori private school for pre-primary children at Austin Drive and Antelope Creek Rd.
—Recommended approval on vote of 5-4 a change of zone from D Multiple Dwelling

Diplomats Not Fully Immune
Bern, Switzerland (AP) — Police chief Heinz Bratschi has found a vulnerable spot in the diplomatic immunity from arrest of the 600 foreign envoys who live here.

Diplomatic cars left in no parking zones will be towed away, he announced.

Dallas DA Aims To Get Ruling On Sodomy Laws
Dallas (UPI) — The district attorney's office has appealed to the Supreme Court a federal court ruling which declared the Texas sodomy laws unconstitutional.

The case was brought to court by a married couple who said they feared "prosecution for sodomy" because the law does not exclude them as a married couple.

Inflation Rolls On Unchecked In March

Washington (UPI) — Rocketing food prices slowed in March, but sharp jumps in home ownership and medical care costs kept the worst inflation in 20 years rolling along unchecked, the government reported Wednesday.

Despite all the federal anti-inflation programs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the cost of living went up 0.5% last month, trimming almost another half penny off the purchasing power of a dollar bill.

That increase equalled the February advance, boosted the cost of living 6.1% higher than it was a year earlier and nudged the index to 133.2% of the 1957-59 base period.

To Americans, that meant it cost $13.22 to buy the same goods and services last month that would have cost just $10 a little over a decade ago.

The Labor Department said higher interest on mortgages, spiraling medical care costs and increases for other services more than offset the slowdown in food prices in March.

Egg prices fell by more than a dime a dozen and largely offset increases for nearly all other foods, the report said, but even so food prices still were 7.5% higher than a year earlier.

In March, food prices rose just 0.1% and the cost of food eaten at home — the first figure includes restaurant meals — was unchanged.

Mortgage interest rates accounted for 28% of the overall increase in March and were 23.8% higher than they had been just a year earlier.

As for medical care, which showed a 6.8% increase over the past year, the government said it jumped up a full 1% in March, the sharpest rise in 3½ years.

Under Governor Tiemann's leadership Nebraska gained a crime control commission, anti-riot legislation, a Law Enforcement Training Center, a Division of Juvenile Delinquency and many more state patrolmen.

CU's Anderson Uncertain Status

Denver (AP) — Bobby Anderson, University of Colorado All-American hinted Wednesday he's been talking to the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League — but he skirted any outright comparisons between Denver and Vancouver offers.

Anderson said he is uncertain regarding his status with the Denver Broncos of the National Football League because actual negotiations are being handled by his attorney, Jack Mills of Boulder. He quotes Mills as saying the talks are "slow."

Anderson was drafted by Denver in January.

ranks as the game's greatest drawing card and always has to be considered a threat, particularly on a tight course such as this one which places a premium on accuracy.

Casper, Nicklaus and Player have possibly the best recent scores. The quiet Casper has won twice — including the Masters — this year, Nicklaus has been out of the top 10 only once in his last eight starts and Player has won over $61,000 in the last six weeks.

"I think I can hit it as straight as anybody," Trevino said, "and that's what it takes on this course."

Trevino, the year's leading money winner at $84,000, also has the desire.

Fremont Suit Challenges Two New Election Laws

Fremont (AP) — The City of Fremont Wednesday filed suit in Dodge County District Court asking the court to declare unconstitutional two laws passed by the last Legislature dealing with elections.

The suit claims there is a section in each law — LB542 and LB1294 — which gives the secretary of state power to decide disputed points in the measures until the points are cleared up by the courts.

Allegations by the city are that these sections violate the State Constitution because they unlawfully delegate judicial powers to the secretary of state and the state attorney general.

The case arose when incumbent Fremont City Councilman John R. Purkey, who was elected to a two-year term in April, 1969, announced his intention to run for Dodge County commissioner in the May 12 primary.

John E. Walker, assuming Purkey's council seat would be vacated, then ran as a write-in candidate in last month's city election. He was elected to fill the unexpired term of Purkey.

Bookbinders Local Strikes Control Data

Members of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, Local 120, went on strike against Control Data Corp. here Wednesday morning, according to plant manager Darrell Premo.

Premo said "economic differences" were the source of conflict between the 62 workers and the company.

According to a union spokesman, a union committee had met with company officials a number of times to "try to hack out a contract" but that no satisfactory offers resulted.

"when and if a vacancy occurs."

The city claims it sent a registered letter to Secretary of State Frank Marshall asking Marsh to rule when the vacancy would occur and how it would be filled. The city said it has never received an answer from Marsh.

Fremont City Atty. Lyle B. Gill claims that neither law carries a severability clause and if the sections in question are ruled unconstitutional each law in its entirety would be void.

The May 12 primary elections throughout the state will be held under provisions of the new laws.

Suggestions To Improve Environment Presented

Spectators attending the wide variety of topic discussions during the Earth Day program at the University of Nebraska were bombarded with conservation and environmental improvement suggestions from every angle.

Panel members discussing land development and esthetics emphasized the importance of preserving the physical environment to ensure a future for an improved social environment.

Paul F. McCrary, environmental specialist for the U.S. National Park Service, indicated that citizen interest in the environment is "not a passing fancy, but the newest chapter in man's continuing search for himself."

Later, Donald F. Burzlaff, professor of agronomy at the University of Nebraska, told the audience that valuable rangeland in Nebraska is protected by "inadequate laws."

"The people that originally settled the land were more courageous than intelligent," Burzlaff said. This led to poor land use practices becoming established from earliest statehood, Burzlaff added.

James V. Drew, professor of agronomy at NU, said that only when the value of the land declines will people be willing to work to improve the land.

During a wildlife resources discussion, James Sisson, a wildlife biologist with the Nebraska Games and Parks Commission, charged man with destroying the diversity of wildlife in the environment.

"Have you ever wondered why there are so many different kinds of animals?" he asked. "Because diversity leads to stability of a living system," was his answer.

Sisson said man has, through the use of poor conservation practices, destroyed the delicate balance necessary to maintain and promote a diversified environment.

A former Lincoln tomato farmer, Duane Eckert, charged that the railroads had destroyed his crop through indiscriminate use of weed killing sprays along the railroad right-of-way.

According to Eckert, the railroads and telephone companies utilize enough weed control spray each year to blanket the state.

"The chemical companies have never told the whole story about drift," Eckert said. "They only tell what it does — not how."

The Earth Day activities ended with some 75 persons participating in a candlelight parade up 15th St. from the State Historical Society Museum to the State Capitol.

Exon Promises To Fight Pollution

Omaha — Democratic gubernatorial candidate J. J. Exon Wednesday night promised, if elected, to work with other midwestern governors to exert influence on automobile manufacturers and gasoline processors to control pollution.

Automobile manufacturers should be influenced to develop adequate anti-pollution devices and gasoline processors should be encouraged to develop lead-free gasoline, Exon said.

The Democratic aspirant offered a five-point pollution control program to a joint environmental study session sponsored by Creighton University and the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Exon pledged to influence state government and its subdivisions to eliminate their own acts of pollution; promised to "actively seek and use whatever federal funds are available" in pollution control, and said he would encourage NU to develop and establish an ecology center or the Great Plains. "Our governor and state senators running for governor have provided absolutely no leadership on this problem," Exon said.

"We have forfeited millions in federal matching funds... We have been on dead center."

"The governor and his committees are about to sell out Nebraska's control over its own destinies in this area to the federal government."

The people, Exon said, are "ahead of government. Government has been a follower — not a leader. That situation must be reversed."

Herb Alpert, Wife Agree To Divorce

Hollywood (AP) — Trumpeter Herb Alpert, founder of the Tijuana Brass, and his wife, Sharon, said Wednesday they have agreed to file for divorce.

In a joint statement, the Alperes said they reached the decision following a one-year separation because they "can't be happy living together."

Alpert, 35, rose from movie extra to head of a multimillion-dollar record company in less than 15 years.

The couple has two children, a son Dore, 10, and a daughter, Eden, 4. Their 12-year-old marriage was the first for both. Mrs. Alpert is 31.

E-Week Features Displays On Environment

The theme for the 1970 E-Week open house at the University of Nebraska is "Environment — Use It or Lose It," and from the exhibits being shown, we may have already lost it.

Example — A human lung taken from a man who died from emphysema. The ravaging effects of smoking are dramatically brought home to the viewer.

Example — a transportation display showing that automobiles cause 50% of the air pollution in the United States. Consequences of this pollution, according to the display, range from an uncomfortable environment to cancer.

Example — A display showing the DDT content as .10 to .20 parts per million in milk of nursing mothers. This is 2-4 times the content allowed in milk for commercial sale.

Not all of the approximately 60 displays are on the gloomy side, however.

Displays showing rapid transit systems that would emit no fumes, microwave circuits capable of transmitting thousands of television pictures, and anti-pollutant devices for present day automobiles are also featured.

E-Week '70 is sponsored by the College of Engineering and Architecture, and will run through Saturday.

Academy Of Sciences To Meet At NWU

The Eightieth annual meeting of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences and Affiliated Societies opens Friday morning at the Olin Hall of Science at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

More than 500 college and high school science faculty and students and other members of the NAC or its affiliate members are expected to attend the two-day session.

One highlight is the Maiben Memorial Lecture at 8 p.m. Friday in the Durham Teaching Center of Olin Hall. The lecture will be delivered by Bacon F. Chow, professor of biology at the school of hygiene and public health at Johns Hopkins University.

The section on the History and Philosophy of Science will honor two past Nebraska scientists of note at its Friday afternoon session.

They were Asa T. Hill

Improvements Are Sought In Federal Disaster Relief

Washington (AP) — President Nixon, looking back on a record year for federal disaster relief payments, told Congress Wednesday the aid program generally is effective but "a number of improvements are in order."

Nixon sent a special message to Capitol Hill recommending a number of legislative revisions — one to authorize low-interest federal loans to help communities overcome loss of property tax revenues following major disasters.

The chief executive called also for congressional action to expand federal authority to replace disaster-damaged public facilities and to ease terms for disaster loans granted by the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration.

"In 1959," Nixon said, "the federal government allocated $150 million for assistance from the President's disaster relief fund, the largest sum for any one year in history."

The chief executive said various disasters, 29 of them major, claimed more than 300 lives and did an estimated $2 billion of property damage in 1969.

"Events such as the California floods and Hurricane Camille with the Virginia floods were exceptionally destructive," he said.

In his proposed legislative package, Nixon asked Congress to make it easier for the federal government to provide temporary housing or emergency shelter in disaster areas and to speed federal removal of debris from private property when that is considered in the public interest.

Nixon called also for a two-year extension of unemployment compensation payments to those made jobless by disasters and urged expansion of a program to help states better plan for coping with catastrophes.

By executive order, Nixon created a National Council on Federal Disaster Assistance made up of senior officials from agencies involved.

Daly Denies Making Deal With Hruska

Omaha (AP) — Omaha architect Leo Daly has denied charges that Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., intervened for him to win a multimillion dollar contract in return for the promise of a $5,000 campaign contribution.

Earlier Sen. Hruska, too, said there was no truth to the allegation made in the syndicated column written by Jack Anderson.

Anderson alleged that Hruska, interceded for Daly to win a $2.5 million contract for redesigning a portion of Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue in return for the $5,000 campaign promise.

Hruska said: "Mr. Daly has not contributed to my 1970 campaign and I have not discussed any contribution with him."

Daly said in Omaha: "I have not contributed to Hruska and have not even discussed it with him. Anderson's people did talk with me about 10 days ago and I said I probably would contribute. I always have. Then I remembered Morrison (former Gov. Frank Morrison) probably will be his opponent and I have always supported Morrison."

"Lot Of Untruths"

He added: "A column like this takes a lot for granted. I don't know what to say except it contains a lot of untruths and innuendos."

Said Daly of the current campaign: "I have not ever been approached by Hruska for a contribution. I have not committed anything to him. In the past, I have been a supporter but not by a bit amount. In 1964, it was several hundred dollars."

Ex-Con, Girl Force Plane Toward Cuba

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — An armed ex-convict and his woman companion commandeered a single-engine rental plane over North Carolina Wednesday, police said, and stopped here for their second refueling en route to Cuba. During the stop the hijackers demanded a bottle of whisky.

Federal Aviation Administration officials in Atlanta said the man — identified by North Carolina police as Ira Davis (Orrie) Meeks of Gastonia, N.C. — told control towers along his route to keep police clear of the refueling stop or he would blow up the plane.

North Carolina Police Sgt. D. T. King identified the woman as Diane McKenney, 18, of Gastonia.

The FAA spokesman said the plane was directed to an open area at Jacksonville International Airport where the man demanded a bottle of Scotch whisky.

The spokesman quoted the man as telling control towers "I mean business."

The light plane — carrying only the two hijackers and the pilot — was expected to make another refueling stop in Key West, Fla., before heading for Cuba, the FAA spokesman said.
